Marngrook Footy Show

Last Wednesday night, our year 4-6 students work featured on the Marngrook Footy Show on NITV. The Year 4-6 students at have been studying the Marngrook Footy Show this term. They have used the footy show to inspire them to learn about panel and interview etiquette, Aboriginal culture within the AFL, portrait art and have linked this all to poetry.

The process involved students to view the footy show, understand and learn about respectful oral communication within cultures and they learnt about the editing process when publishing literature. Above all, they enjoyed the experience of writing constructive poetry and using art to express their final product. They worked alongside visiting artist John Budiselik to create a poem that represents Derek Kickett's journey.

We were thrilled to receive an email from the Acting Director General of Education, congratulating our students on their amazing artwork, poetry and appearance on the show.

Artwork is on display in the office.

The students' poem:

The Golden Kick of Derek Kickett

The panel on the Marngrook show speak well, they dress well and operate well.

Each word is excellent, exceptional, elegant and expresses the opinion of everyone everywhere in footy the world.

Their knowledge resembles a wise book of wisdom.

Derek Kickett, past prince of the game, is now ruler with the panel.

When he played, crowds cheered, yahooped, clapped and marveled at his skill, in particular, his legendary torpedoes.

They spoke to the mob and gave attention to his Aboriginal ability, but now he leads another team.

This team inspires with impressive, interesting, information within the indigenous world of sport.

Yes, our former fella Tammin student is still kicking goals.
