10 November 2025
Week 5 Term 4

A message from the Principal.....

Dear Parents and Guardians,

Term 4, Week 5

Kindy Orientation

We have Gracie and Margot joining us for kindy orientation this term! We are so happy to have you here and hope you are ready for a great Kindy year in 2026. We still have three more kindy orientations to go! Aimee Lesson, our School Health Nurse, will be joining us on Wednesday 19th November to speak with our new kindy parents. We hope to see you all there!

National Quality Standards (NQS) visit

On Wednesday 12th November, we will have two visitors from the Early Childhood: National Quality Standards team. They will be visiting our K-2 classroom and talking to Miss Wackett and myself to provide both commendations and recommendations to allow us to continue to provide quality care and education for our Early Childhood students.

End of year award night

Our presentation awards night will be held at the KEP on Tuesday 16th December from 6pm. All parents, families and community members are invited and we have begun planning a great night! More information will be sent home in the coming weeks.

Reports and parent meetings

Reports will be sent home on Tuesday the 16th of December. Please contact your child's classroom teacher via Seesaw or the student diary if you would like to schedule a meeting prior to reports going home.

Thank you,
Emma De Cinque
Principal

A note from the School Health Nurse

Why Australian kids are seeing sexual content younger than ever – and what families and schools can do about it.

A growing risk that's hard to ignore

New eSafety research shows 1 in 3 Australian children aged 10 to 17 have seen sexual images or videos online. Beyond our research, we know some of the material children are seeing is violent, degrading or misogynistic. And it often surfaces on the same apps and platforms they use every day. This is not just about harmful content. It's how pornography may be shaping some young people's ideas about sex, consent, and relationships before they are ready to deal with such adult concepts. And it's happening at scale. That's why eSafety is shining a spotlight on how easy it is for children to access porn online. As we work with government and industry to improve protections, we're also arming parents, schools, and carers with the guidance they need to support young people now.

Why it matters

More and more evidence shows that children are seeing content that does not reflect healthy, respectful or real-life sexual relationships.

Some of the pornography they find online can:

- promote unrealistic expectations about bodies, sex and consent
- normalise misogyny and violence towards women and girls
- lead to confusion, anxiety or shame, particularly when viewed at a young age
- fuel peer pressure, especially when explicit content is shared in social groups.

This kind of exposure can influence how young people behave – both online and offline. It can also affect their understanding of intimacy, boundaries and respect.

What parents can do now

While industry changes are underway, parents and carers are still the first line of defence. Here's what you can do:

Start early and talk often

- Open the conversation and check in with your children about what they are seeing online.
- Use age-appropriate language and check in regularly
- Focus on values such as respect, consent and empathy.

Set up safety tools

- Use parental controls and safe search settings on all devices.
- Activate restrictions on social media, video and streaming apps.
- Keep devices in shared spaces where possible.

Make it OK to ask

- Let your child know they can talk to you about anything they see online.
- Reassure them they won't be in trouble if they come to you for help.

Stay involved

- Be curious about what apps or platforms they're using.
- Know who they're chatting with and what they're seeing.
- Model healthy digital habits yourself.

Kindergarten Orientation

Last week we had our first kindy transition session. Our new kindies had a great time during their first day of school. Some of our highlights included, reading a story, making a crown and joining the 3-6 class for sport.
